Twenty Are Injured in Riots Near Mexico City

CATHOLICS FIGHT AGAINST TROOPS AND POLICEMEN

Battle Caused Over Report Members of Schismatic Church Intended To Seize Catholic Edifice.

ALLEGED PLOTTERS PUT UNDER ARREST

Twenty-One Persons, Including Prominent Woman Physician, Are Seized in Mexico Sunday.

Mexico City, August 15.—A score of persons were wounded, three seriously, when rioting Catholics, policemen and federal troopers fought in the streets of San Angelo, six miles southwest of Mexico City, Sunday morning.

The outbreak occurred when a group of Catholics who feared members of the schismatic church, intending to take over the church of San Jacinto, attacked ten policemen approaching the church building. The Catholics stone the police, forcing them to call for federal troopers.

Soon both sides had been increased and a seething rioting crowd was using stones, guns and clubs. The troopers fired into the crowd and used the butts of their guns to drive the church members back. A party of American girl sight-seers hurried from the city when they were warned by the Catholics there that the rioting had not ended.

21 ALLEGED PLOTTERS ARRESTED IN MEXICO.

Mexico City, August 15.—Twenty-one persons were arrested here Sunday on charges of plotting against the Calles government.

Dr. Perches, a prominent woman physician, is among those held by the police, while the remaining 20 live in suburban cities located near the capital. Most of them are residents of San Angelo, a resort town six miles southwest of Mexico City and the home of many wealthy Mexicans and foreigners.

Soldiers were routed from their beds between midnight and dawn Sunday morning and ordered to San Angelo and other suburbs, where trouble was reported. The authorities feared that Sunday, celebrated throughout Mexico as the Day of Ascension, would be the occasion of outbreaks.

The arrests in San Angelo followed a meeting at the home of a Catholic there. It is reported that many prominent persons were among those taken into custody, but the police have announced no names.

Early reports said that there had been trouble at the Church of Magdalena, in the town of Contreras. Of GERRY PREDICTS DEMOCRAT SENATE IN SCORING G. O. P.

United States Senator Sees Undercurrent of Sentiment Favorable to Democrats at Polls.

Providence, R. I., August 15.—(P) Control of the senate by a democratic majority in the fall, due to a reaction against the "lack of leadership" and the tariff policy of the republican administration was predicted today by United States Senator Peter G. Gerry, of Rhode Island, chairman of the national democratic senatorial campaign committee. Evidence of an undercurrent of sentiment favorable to the democrats was noted by Senator Gerry. He saw the republicans wanting "unity of purpose," and accused the administration of falling in constructive legislation.

"Both the eastern and western republicans are still sharply divided on a fundamental party policy," he said, "and today have not even a tariff program on which they can agree to hold them together. The people are realizing that the party has no unity of purpose and that the vaunted statesmanship, economy and sound business leadership of the administration are myths."

"Economic conditions for a time gave the country a fairly prosperous business condition but with the depression of some big industries in the east, and the continued agricultural slump in the south and west, Americans are realizing that what prosperity we enjoyed has not in any respect been due to legislation and that, instead of an able constructive program there has been no program and no leadership."

"No constructive work is being done by the government to better conditions."

TINKHAM DEMANDS DRY LEAGUE TRIAL IN FEDERAL COURT

Wet Writes Sargent That Anti-Saloon League Has Violated Corrupt Practices Act.

CRIMINAL PURPOSE LAID TO CAMPAIGN

'Systematic, Intentional and Criminal Purpose To Violate Law' Is Burden of Accusation.

Washington, August 15.—(P)—Prosecution of the Anti-Saloon League of America on criminal proceedings under the corrupt practices act was demanded by Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, in a letter to Attorney General Sargent, made public today.

Mr. Tinkham declared the Anti-Saloon league, which he described as an "ecclesiastical political organization," has violated the corrupt practices act of 1925 as follows:

"1.—No report of receipts and expenditures of any character made prior to 1920; and

"2.—From 1920 to 1924, inclusive, reports made of receipts and expenditures of only a few thousand dollars, which reports were sworn to by the said Wayne B. Wheeler."

Mr. Tinkham related that the act of 1925 requires the return under oath every three months of all receipts and expenditures made by any organization for political purposes.

No Reports Filed.

"Until June, 1926, the Anti-Saloon League of America under this act," he wrote, "reported under oath that no subscriptions had been received and no expenditures had been made. No report was filed by any subsidiary, not even by that of the state of New York, where an expensive independent campaign has been carried on by highly paid agents of this excessively subsidized subsidiary for its own candidates for public office."

"These facts disclose a systematic, intentional and criminal purpose to violate the law on the part of this organization, which has entirely set aside one of the great guarantees of American freedom and liberty as asserted in the constitution of the United States, namely, the separation of church and state. Moreover, this organization, which now controls the congress of the United States and has made a mockery of the constitution and of law, has paid campaign expenses of senators and representatives and has even had the unspeakable audacity to place some of them upon its pay roll."

$500,000,000 FUND SAID TO BE ADMITTED.

Washington, August 15.—One of the leading wet republican congressmen, Tinkham, of Massachusetts, tonight demanded that Attorney General Sargent enforce the corrupt practices acts against the Anti-Saloon league. He said drys recently admitted to the senate primary investigating committee the expenditure of nearly $500,000,000 in the last few years.

"Never has there been disclosed any political expenditure of any character for any purpose which approximated in the slightest degree this gigantic cost of legislation," Tinkham said in his letter to Sargent.

"The federal corrupt practices act of 1925 requires the return under oath every three months of all receipts and expenditures made by any organization for political purposes, and it specifically requires that return be made by the subsidiaries."

"It is indefensible that you should allow to continue the nullification of the federal corrupt practices act of 1925, and I demand that you immediately institute appropriate criminal proceedings against that Anti-Saloon League of America and its subsidiaries, as provided in the act of 1925, and also against the officers of the organization who may have been guilty of perjury."

Jimmy Calhoun's Last Parachute Leap

In the picture to the left the form of Jimmy Calhoun is seen suspended from his parachute over Lakewood park a few seconds before he plunged to his death Sunday afternoon. A. F. Roeder, of 395 Windsor street, expert amateur photographer, who made the pictures, barely had time to change the film in his camera between the time he took the shot at the left and the picture at the lower right, which shows the splash of water as Calhoun fell into the lake. Calhoun is shown at top right with his pretty, young wife, who was Miss Lucile Hand, of Atlanta, before their marriage. She was among the throng of more than 20,000 spectators at the park Sunday afternoon and collapsed when she saw her youthful husband hurtling through space to his death. Men and boys can be seen running to the lake side in the photograph at the right after Calhoun lost his grip and struck the water after a frantic and pitiful battle to straighten into a diving position before striking the surface of the lake.

Constitution Aquatic Meet Draws Praise

Park Officials Delighted With Opportunity For Water Carnival.

The announcement that The Constitution will stage a water carnival at the municipal pools for the amateur swimmers of the city has brought a deluge of commendatory messages from members of city council, officials of the park board and leaders in athletic circles in the city.

"The finest thing that has been done for the followers of amateur sports in this city for years," that is the gist of the messages received from Chairman John A. White of the parks committee of council, who returned Sunday night from a vacation.

L. L. Wallis, manager of parks, to whom goes much of the credit for the splendid condition of public parks and swimming pools in Atlanta, added his voice to the chorus of approval upon his return from his vacation in company with Mr. White Sunday night.

Wallis Pleased.

"The Constitution has always been anxious to serve the public and this last move on the part of your newspaper is evidence that the interests of the thousands who use the public swimming pools are the interests of The Constitution. These were the words of Mr. Wallis when informed of The Constitution plan.

KELLOGG CONFERS WITH PRESIDENT TODAY ON MEXICO

Advisers of Coolidge Feel That Immediate Decision On Appeals For Intervention Is Necessary.

Paul Smith's, N. Y., August 15.—Secretary of State Kellogg arrived here Sunday to confer with President Coolidge on a number of questions pending before the state department, chiefly the Mexican situation.

The conference is considered the most important of the summer for on it hinges the character of the American attitude toward the Mexican religious controversy. Kellogg faces one of the most critical problems he has encountered and feels that telegraphic communication is inadequate to cope with the question presented in Mexico.

The secretary of state has been loath to act upon the protests and demands of the various religious organizations which have sought American intervention in Mexican disorders and hopes to find relief in the president's decision.

Mr. Coolidge's advisers feel that a decision on the Knights of Columbus petition must be reached immediately. James A. Flaherty, head of the organization, has been pressing the president and the state department for action for several weeks.

While American intervention in Mexican problems is still considered unlikely, the president's advisers feel he must make a definite decision quickly.

Genoa, Italy, August 15.—(P)—Several hundred men and women bathers at the beaches here have been ordered to appear before the court to answer charges of immodest attire. The new modest regulations had their first application today and the authorities gathered in all bathers who did not conform to the restrictions. There were exciting arguments in the course of the police raids and some fighting. Many of the women protested against the activities of the special costume censors.

PROSECUTOR PLANS TO PROVE MURDER CHARGED TO THREE

New Jersey Hides Identity of New Witnesses To Corroborate Woman's Testimony.

Somerville, N. J., August 15.—(P) The state hid the identity of two new witnesses it will ask to corroborate the testimony of Mrs. Jane Gibson in the renewed investigation into the Hall-Mills murder mystery.

The witnesses, it is believed, will be called tomorrow at the continuation of the hearing of Henry De La Bruyere Carpenter, cousin of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, and of "Willie" Stevens, her eccentric brother, all three of whom are charged with the murders.

Mrs. Gibson named the two men in court Friday as being present with Mrs. Hall, at the scene of the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills on the night of September 14, 1922. Mrs. Hall, widow of the clergyman, is out on $15,000 bail. She spent the day quietly in her New Brunswick home. Her brother and cousin occupied cells in Somerset county jail.

Willard Staub, arrested as a material witness last week, is reported to have changed his story, that he was near when the Rev. Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were slain. State Senator Simpson, special prosecutor, previously had stated that this witness was within 75 feet of the crab-apple tree when the rector and his chorister were murdered. It was learned that Staub told investigators that he was in Dr. Ramsey's lane, near the scene of the crime, on the night of September 13, 1922, with a girl companion, and not September 14. Search is being made for this alleged companion, now married, and reported employed as a probationary nurse in Brooklyn, N. Y.

FALLS INTO LAKE WHEN GRIP FAILS 400 FEET IN AIR

Wife of Daredevil Among 20,000 Spectators Who Witness Tragedy On Sunday Afternoon.

BODY IS RECOVERED THREE HOURS LATER

Parachutist Had Released Harness for Final Dive, But Missed Hold and Fell to Death.

Losing his grip, Jimmy Calhoun, youthful aerial stunt man, plunged several hundred feet from a parachute to his death in the lake at Lakewood park Sunday afternoon.

His young wife, Lucille, with a throng of 20,000 spectators, witnessed the tragedy and heard the sickening thud as Calhoun's body struck the waters of the lake. She screamed as she saw the boy lose his hold and come plunging downward and collapsed in the arms of her mother as she saw the muddy waters of the lake close over his body.

Jumped From Plane.

Calhoun jumped from the wing of a plane piloted by A. B. McMullen about 4:10 o'clock—the start of a race between Calhoun and the plane to reach the earth in the shortest time. The parachute filled and bore its human cargo safely until within about 400 feet of the surface of the lake.

The slip came as Calhoun prepared for the final stage of the descent, when the parachutist must leap entirely free from the descending folds of silk and hit the water far enough away to be safe from entanglement in its cords and fabric.

He unbuckled his safety belt, as he had done in two previous descents over the lake, and snipped it fast to the parachute rigging. He then raised himself by his arms to pull his leg through the safety loop in the main rope to which the rigging is fastened in order that he might swing by his hands entirely free from the contrivance as it approached the water and hit it safely in a graceful dive.

It was at this instant, when he was pulling himself through the loop, that his hand apparently slipped from the rope.

Missing his grip, he struggled frantically in mid-air to reach an upright posture, but hit the lake in a crouching position instead of a feet. Force that might have meant only broken legs as he crashed into the water. The struggle was futile, his body striking the water with such force

Rudolph Valentino In Critical Condition; Operation Necessary

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

New York, August 15.—Rudolph Valentino, king of the movie sheiks, is in a critical state at Poly Clinic hospital, following a complicated operation for appendicitis and abscesses performed there at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon by Dr. H. Mescher, of the staff.

Valentino had been complaining for several days of abdominal pains. At 11 o'clock this morning he was seized with a violent convulsion while visiting friends in an apartment at 80th street and West End avenue.

A physician was summoned, who found the condition of the patient so serious that he was rushed to Poly Clinic hospital and placed on the operating table in less than an hour from the time of the last seizure.

What Do You Think About It?

Someone said: "It costs more to live now than it did prior to 1914, but it is worth it." He spoke truly, for living is always worth what it costs.

The war started us on that "vicious circle" of ascending costs, but we appear to have touched the peak, and are now slowly tracing the circle backwards.

That person who reads The Constitution advertisements carefully and regularly is sure to note a gradual drop in prices of the necessities of life.

Alert merchants buy wisely and at a trifle lower price, and pass the savings along to their customers, sometimes in bargain sales, sometimes in regular sales price.

It is well the descent in costs is gradual; a sudden drop to pre-war levels would be almost as disastrous as the war. Just be patient, and read the advertisements in The Constitution every morning. You will be amazed how much you can cut the cost of living by careful and judicious buying.

AMERICAN EXPORTS SHOW LARGE GAIN

Washington, August 15.—(P)—This country's exports of approximately $2,000,000,000 in finished manufactures during the fiscal year just closed reflect "the ever rising efficiency of American industry and the energy and intelligence of American salesmanship in foreign markets." Director Klein of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, declared in a review made public today.

The total represented a 16 per cent increase over exports of manufactured goods in the previous fiscal year and it was 60 per cent greater than in the 1921-22 figures.

"The American manufacturer," he said, "has evidently disposed of sundry tattered scarecrows which used to startle his timid predecessors as they ventured along the strange paths of export. He no longer turns back at vague warnings regarding 'aliphoid American packing,' 'inadequate credits," "imperfect export technique" or "inferior foreign trade financing."

"These threadbare bugaboos have been most effectively dispelled by the uninterrupted expansion of the overseas markets for manufacturers. Regardless of depreciated European currencies and low wages—in fact, partly because of the low standards of living which they imply—the intelligence and resourceful adaptability of the American manufacturer, backed by a firm policy as to quality in goods and service as against cut prices, have made a place overseas for American fabricated wares which high fair to continue its steady growth."

It cannot be added, that "we are simply filling the vacancy left by the continued absence of European wares from certain overseas markets," because "ours is very largely a trade in products which are either based upon our predominance in necessary raw material supplies or in the production of certain specialties of types and grades distinctly different from those which could be shipped abroad in any quantity even by a restored Europe."

33 states have senatorial vacancies this year) states on each of the dominant party tickets.

"Over 75 per cent of the congressmen and over 80 per cent of the senators nominated in those districts and states, where the nomination ordinarily means an election, are candidates who stand for maintenance and enforcement of prohibition."

Another Test to Come.

"This is the best referendum this year to reveal public sentiment on the prohibition issue. In November another test of sentiment will be made in the election, and we predict a similar result if the dries are alert."

"The wets are spending more money, building a stronger organization, and spreading more propaganda than ever, but the average voter remembers the conditions when liquor ruled and continues to vote dry."

On a straight count of money now in sight the optimism of the dries appears justifiable. For if there are any big breaks toward the wet cause, they will come as a result of the prohibition referendum to be held in some states this fall, and in the result of the wet and dry senatorial fights in Illinois, Missouri and Ohio. Should the wets win clear victories in these contests, many legislators now wearing the dry tag would do quick somersaults "in response to a change of public sentiment." But if these breaks fail to favor the wets, the next congress probably will give Wayne E. Wheeler any legislation he wants.

The federal trade commission has been put in cold storage, as is shown by the action it took when it decided to refuse publication of the evidence of law violation by big corporations merely because it received a promise from them that they would be good in the future. Is it any wonder that a body functioning on the theory that behind this action should have bungled the investigation of the aluminum trust, controlled by Secretary Mellon and his family?

"The republican party does not want big business exposed any more than it wants the packed tariff commission to get the actual facts. The administration wants from the tariff commission has been shown in the efforts made to insure their complete subservience to the executive."

Liquor Sold in Capitol.

Even granting the wets the benefit of the breaks, it is doubtful if congress will go back where it once was less than twenty-five years ago. Liquor was sold openly in the capitol building. There was a bar in the house wing and in both the house and senate restaurants, legislators and the public could buy and drink with the same freedom as in the 41 saloons that lined Pennsylvania avenue between the capitol and the white house.

For years dries tried to banish this bar and the serving of liquor in the house and senate club. Each year the house would pass legislation to this effect and the senate would bury it. In 1903 the house put the usual capitol prohibition measure on an immigration bill as a rider as a result of a taint from the wet side. Only 19 congressmen voted against it.

The people are urged to continue their abstention from theaters and other amusements.

Parachutist falls to death in lake.

That the impact sounded as plainly as a pistol shot.

It was all over in a second. Horrified spectators saw the body turn upon the surface of the water in several agonized revolutions and sink.

The body was recovered about 7 o'clock during a torrential rain which burst over Lakewood park and forced all boats to shelter with the exception of two small boats bearing expert divers. Mrs. Calhoun refused to leave the lakeside until the body was brought in, and then she followed it to J. Patterson's undertaking establishment.

Calhoun was 21 years of age and had been doing aerial stunts for the past five years, beginning his dangerous career while serving in the army. He made 127 successful leaps during that five years and was considered one of the most expert parachute men in the game. He was a native of Savannah.

The race was the first of its kind to be held in Atlanta, although Calhoun had performed the feat several times before.

The plane gained an altitude of half mile and McCullum signaled Calhoun. He jumped into space and falling far enough under the plane to be clear of the propeller, his parachute opened. The plane went into a tail spin and started on its journey to earth.

The cords on Calhoun's parachute had been arranged in order that they might be adjusted to increase his speed during the first part of the fall.

It is believed by witnesses that Calhoun was getting out of his harness in order that he might be ready to take the water when he struck. What caused him to lose his hold has not been determined.

Parachute O. K.

McCullum said he examined Calhoun's parachute and found that there was absolutely nothing the matter with the harness. He was of the opinion that he had gotten out of the straps in preparation for a dive into the water and for some reason lost his grip.

Rowboats and motorboats posted on the lake to pick him up were at the spot where he landed within a few seconds. Life guards poised waiting precious instants for him to rise above the surface, as he had risen, safely, on the preceding two Sundays. When he failed to rise they began a fruitless search below the water that was maintained until nearly 7 o'clock when grappling hooks finally caught his clothing and brought his body to the surface.

A determined but unavailing effort to revive him with a pulmonary was made as he was rushed into Atlanta in a Grady ambulance which reached the scene within 15 minutes after the accident. His body was later carried to H. M. Patterson & Son's mortuary. Examination indicated that the concussion with the water had been fatal.

Swimmers Rushed to Scene.

Lifeguards from the municipal parks, expert swimmers of the United States navy stationed in Atlanta and a special detail of army-savers rushed to the park from Fort McPherson joined with the lifeguards who had been stationed around the lake to guard against mishap.

Pilot McCullum made an emergency land at Candler field and returned to the lake to direct the rescue work within a quarter of an hour after the fall.

Calhoun's last jump marked the third accident he had suffered in a five years career as an aerial daredevil. His first jump, he five years, which was made from an airplane piloted by Captain McCullum, broke his back when a gust of wind hurled him against a freight car parked near the Feting field. He returned to the dangerous game immediately after his recovery and made 125 more jumps, many of them from McCullum's plane.

Two are Drowned.

upright until it touched the water. The belt was nearly buckled around the safety line as he had left it before the fatal slip and every card was in proper position when the parachute was taken from the lake.

RADIOS OF COAST TO SERVE PLANES

Washington, August 15.—(P)—Radio compass stations along the Atlantic coast from Boston to Norfolk probably will be opened to serve naval and other aircraft traveling the coastal airways within the next month, due to the unexpectedly rapid work of the dirigible Lee Angeles in calibrating these stations to determine the factor of error for each radio compass center.

The Lee Angeles is scheduled to leave Norfolk, N. C., tomorrow morning, weather permitting, for a trip down the coast as far as the Poyner's Hill, N. C. radio station. She will circle each radio compass station on the coast on the way down, checking up by visual compass bearings with the radio compass bearings as she has previously done with all the stations on the Long Island shore, Narragansett bay and Cape Cod. Ultimately the ship will make a similar check on all of the Atlantic coast to furnish directions for aircraft under low visibility conditions as they seek guide ships at sea approaching each station.

The method of calibration consists of flying the Lee Angeles in a 15-mile circle at low speed around each compass station. The ship keeps at an altitude that makes her visible to the station at all times. With a heavy heart, Mrs. Calhoun, a lovely blonde, who a little more than a year ago was a blushing bride, straightened up and tried to be cheerful as newspapermen asked for an interview and pictures of her "Jimmie."

Coming to the front door of the little home, bowed in grief, she invited the visitors to have a seat in a swing in one corner of the porch while she seated herself on a bench on which she and "Jimmie" had loved, caressed and happily chatted together on the night previous—unaware that the sitting was to be the last.

Married in 1924.

A canary in a window of a next door residence sang its voice fairly trilling, unaware of the tragedy which had visited the Calhoun home—while on the porch Mrs. Calhoun tried with her feminine courage to talk without showing signs of her emotion. The couple were married, Mrs. Calhoun said, on November 13, 1924, in Atlanta. Before her marriage she was Miss Lucile Hand, daughter of Mrs. Bessie Hand, of 1156 Central avenue. Her husband spent several years in the aviation corps of the United States army. While in the service parachute jumping was required of the recruits as was the piloting of an airplane and "stunt flying." Mr. Calhoun became adept in the art of parachute jumping and thrilled with each drop through space. He on last Sunday completed his 125th successful jump from a speeding airplane or from a balloon at high altitudes. He received an honorable discharge from the army shortly more than two years ago because of his extreme youth. He was 22 years old at the time of his death.

Up until shortly more than a week ago Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun lived with Mrs. Calhoun's mother on Central avenue, but on Saturday, August 7, moved to the apartment on West Baker street, where they were making their own "love nest."

Her Memory Book.

When asked for a picture of her daredevil husband and also a photo of herself, Mrs. Calhoun hesitated, but on second thought said that she had a little kodak album containing pictures and newspaper clippings of her husband, "Jimmie."

With an faltering step, she went into the room and from her "hope chest" secured the memory book. As she opened it and looked into it her eyes were dimmed with tears—evidently the picture of "Jimmie" and she kissed it tenderly. This proved too much and, with the exclamation, "Oh! Jimmie, I love him so much," she again began sobbing.

The caressing hand of Mrs. Calhoun's mother was placed upon her daughter's head and her arms crept around her, heart-broken child. After several minutes of consolation Mrs. Calhoun again straightened up and pointed out the photos which she wanted "the papers" to have.

In the album were hundreds of newspaper stories of the deeds of daring of Jimmie Calhoun, relating in detail his thrilling escapades while in mid-air.

But today—yet other clippings are to be inserted which will tell the tragic story of a brave and fearless husband, who on Sunday afternoon took his last jump.

Jersey City, N. J., August 15.—Ten persons are reported to have been injured and a score thrown into a panic Sunday night when a Hudson & Manhattan "tube" train blew out just as the train was about to pull out of the station here.

Panic followed the blinding flash on one of the cars. Women and children screamed as the train lurched to a stop. There was a rush for the doors as the car filled with thick smoke and the fuse continued to sputter.

In the crash, several were injured. A few passengers near to the fuse box were burned.

Says Marital Love Cannot Substitute For Love of God

Countless marriages have gone on the rocks and ended in divorce courts because young men and young women have married expecting to find God in the mates they idolized, and have felt themselves cheated and wronged when they found their idols with feet of clay and no divinity in them.

Ber. Luke Rader, evangelist, told a crowd that packed the Central Baptist church Sunday night to hear his revival sermon on "Happy Homes."

"There is no perfect happiness or satisfaction except in the love of God through faith in Christ, and the world's pursuit of substitutes for that love ends always in disappointment and misery, whether the substitute has been love of pleasure, love of money, love of power or even love of a pure and beautiful woman or of a fine upstanding man," the evangelist declared.

"The misery of this last substitute is the most pitiful of all because it breaks the hearts of many of the purest men and women who remain outside the fold of Christ, men and women of high ideals and beauty of spirit," he declared. "Christ may look without pity upon the man who has found misery in riches or power, because there was no beauty in his heart; when he began the pursuit of his tawdry substitute for God, but he must weep for those whose hearts break in disillusionment for a beautiful love."

The evangelist asserted that the normal state of man was in fellowship and love of God and that when he had faith in God all other things in his life, his business, his domestic relationships fell into harmony and gave him a happy and successful life. When his love is centered on anything else, everything else in his life is out of plumb and out of harmony and he is unhappy, Mr. Rader declared.

Sunday night again drove services out of the open air, on Forsyth street at Whitehall, into the Central Baptist church on Cooper near Whitehall.

Dipping Vat Near Florida-Georgia Line To Aid Both States

Thomasville, Ga., August 15.—(Special).—The announcement that a cattle-dipping vat will be built in Jefferson county, just a short way across the Georgia-Florida line, will mean a great convenience to the farmers of both states living near the line, whose cattle should happen to stray across or who should drive their horses or mules across.

As it is now no cattle are allowed to return until taken to Jacksonville and dipped, thus entailing much inconvenience and expense. It would mean, too, that horses or mules that have been dipped in Florida can be driven across into Georgia, something that has not been allowed for some time.

Two are Drowned.

Goldboro, N. C., August 15.—(P) Mrs. Nathaniel Flowers, 22, lost her life near here today as a futile effort to save James Watson, 10, from drowning. The boy clutched Mrs. Flowers so tightly about the neck that she was unable to free herself. Before going to the rescue, young Watson she had pulled another child from the water.

upright until it touched the water. The belt was nearly buckled around the safety line as he had left it before the fatal slip and every card was in proper position when the parachute was taken from the lake.

'Stunt Man's' Wife Weeps In Lonely Apartment

MRS. CALHOUN TALKS BRAVELY OF HUSBAND'S LIFE

BY ALBERT HARDY.

In a newly furnished room in their recently acquired apartment at 156 West Baker street, where she and her husband, Jimmie Calhoun, daredevil parachute jumper, had lived for only a week, Mrs. Lucile Calhoun Sunday night lay across a sofa and wept bitterly.

The iron nerves which had enabled her to calmly stand on scores of occasions and witness the thrilling leaps into space made by her devoted husband while other spectators were awestricken by the daring feat, Sunday night had been shattered. "Thoughts of the jumps now were a horror and her heart throbbed with grief."

Tragedy had stalked into the little home and taken away the beloved husband, who had been an idol in the minds of thousands of children; a hero to men and women who had thrilled with the exhibits put on by "Jimmie" at Lakewood and other recreation parks throughout the country.

Choices Back Sober.

The waters of the lake at Lakewood Sunday afternoon had engulfed the body of Mrs. Calhoun's husband after he had slipped from his parachute approximately 400 feet above the placid waters. His death was caused by concussion from the impact with the lake after he had jumped from the wing of a plane piloted by A. B. McCullum, about 3:45 o'clock.

With a heavy heart, Mrs. Calhoun, a lovely blonde, who a little more than a year ago was a blushing bride, straightened up and tried to be cheerful as newspapermen asked for an interview and pictures of her "Jimmie."

Coming to the front door of the little home, bowed in grief, she invited the visitors to have a seat in a swing in one corner of the porch while she seated herself on a bench on which she and "Jimmie" had loved, caressed and happily chatted together on the night previous—unaware that the sitting was to be the last.

Married in 1924.

A canary in a window of a next door residence sang its voice fairly trilling, unaware of the tragedy which had visited the Calhoun home—while on the porch Mrs. Calhoun tried with her feminine courage to talk without showing signs of her emotion. The couple were married, Mrs. Calhoun said, on November 13, 1924, in Atlanta. Before her marriage she was Miss Lucile Hand, daughter of Mrs. Bessie Hand, of 1156 Central avenue. Her husband spent several years in the aviation corps of the United States army. While in the service parachute jumping was required of the recruits as was the piloting of an airplane and "stunt flying." Mr. Calhoun became adept in the art of parachute jumping and thrilled with each drop through space. He on last Sunday completed his 125th successful jump from a speeding airplane or from a balloon at high altitudes. He received an honorable discharge from the army shortly more than two years ago because of his extreme youth. He was 22 years old at the time of his death.

Up until shortly more than a week ago Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun lived with Mrs. Calhoun's mother on Central avenue, but on Saturday, August 7, moved to the apartment on West Baker street, where they were making their own "love nest."

Her Memory Book.

When asked for a picture of her daredevil husband and also a photo of herself, Mrs. Calhoun hesitated, but on second thought said that she had a little kodak album containing pictures and newspaper clippings of her husband, "Jimmie."

With an faltering step, she went into the room and from her "hope chest" secured the memory book. As she opened it and looked into it her eyes were dimmed with tears—evidently the picture of "Jimmie" and she kissed it tenderly. This proved too much and, with the exclamation, "Oh! Jimmie, I love him so much," she again began sobbing.

The caressing hand of Mrs. Calhoun's mother was placed upon her daughter's head and her arms crept around her, heart-broken child. After several minutes of consolation Mrs. Calhoun again straightened up and pointed out the photos which she wanted "the papers" to have.

In the album were hundreds of newspaper stories of the deeds of daring of Jimmie Calhoun, relating in detail his thrilling escapades while in mid-air.

But today—yet other clippings are to be inserted which will tell the tragic story of a brave and fearless husband, who on Sunday afternoon took his last jump.

Jersey City, N. J., August 15.—Ten persons are reported to have been injured and a score thrown into a panic Sunday night when a Hudson & Manhattan "tube" train blew out just as the train was about to pull out of the station here.

Panic followed the blinding flash on one of the cars. Women and children screamed as the train lurched to a stop. There was a rush for the doors as the car filled with thick smoke and the fuse continued to sputter.

In the crash, several were injured. A few passengers near to the fuse box were burned.

Says Marital Love Cannot Substitute For Love of God

Countless marriages have gone on the rocks and ended in divorce courts because young men and young women have married expecting to find God in the mates they idolized, and have felt themselves cheated and wronged when they found their idols with feet of clay and no divinity in them.

Ber. Luke Rader, evangelist, told a crowd that packed the Central Baptist church Sunday night to hear his revival sermon on "Happy Homes."

"There is no perfect happiness or satisfaction except in the love of God through faith in Christ, and the world's pursuit of substitutes for that love ends always in disappointment and misery, whether the substitute has been love of pleasure, love of money, love of power or even love of a pure and beautiful woman or of a fine upstanding man," the evangelist declared.

"The misery of this last substitute is the most pitiful of all because it breaks the hearts of many of the purest men and women who remain outside the fold of Christ, men and women of high ideals and beauty of spirit," he declared. "Christ may look without pity upon the man who has found misery in riches or power, because there was no beauty in his heart; when he began the pursuit of his tawdry substitute for God, but he must weep for those whose hearts break in disillusionment for a beautiful love."

The evangelist asserted that the normal state of man was in fellowship and love of God and that when he had faith in God all other things in his life, his business, his domestic relationships fell into harmony and gave him a happy and successful life. When his love is centered on anything else, everything else in his life is out of plumb and out of harmony and he is unhappy, Mr. Rader declared.

WAMS AND WAMS

WHAT is freedom?—Are acquired characteristics transmitted to the offspring? Now those, you may say, sound like deep problems to ask. But the first has been projected at me right through July and this much of August, and I have got to get even somehow; and the second is a speculation growing out of the first.

The freedom I am talking about is the freedom of women, and my question is: Are they, in fact, so all-free?

It's about bobbed hair. Oh, no. Not an argument as to whether a woman should or shouldn't. That decision lies properly with the individual woman and her mirror.

It is to the effect that the woman who has just succumbed to the bob is much like the newly wedded, who urge everybody to marry.

But then, when you are as pretty enough to ask questions—how often must you have your hair trimmed? How long does it stay in curl? What about a vacation in the country when there is no hair dresser available?—then you find out that slavery is the ideal life compared to the allegiance the bobbed head has to pay her favorite beauty shop.

Consider the woman who for some reason can't get a trim or a curl when she needs it. A long eared puppy caught in a drizzle is a cheerful sight in comparison.

THE bobbed heads have no freedom—the hair dressers have seen to that—and in addition the custom reacts on the woman who is not bobbed. She is bound constantly to explain why she is not. And so there is no freedom either way.

Here comes in that matter of acquired characteristics.

After a while when permanent waves (I was about to say perennials, which would be more accurately descriptive) and marcel and such, have so dwarfed women's hair that the bobbed style will have to become more uniform than it is, a long haired woman may look as freakish as would a man with coronet braids or a swirl.

Even then women who burn up their hair or neglect it into nothing will still bring forth children who grow old fashioned crowning glories.

But there is no question that they will and do transmit their tendency to short hair to women of their own generation.

IT'S on my mind, because I am the object again of a crusade. It comes on them recurrently like malaria or the need for seasonable clothes.

They surround me on the hotel veranda and with questions, even before they get their trunks unpacked, as to the best hair dresser in town. "Does she give a good wave? Does she know how to set hair without mutilating one's locks?" etc.

Then in the next breath—"Why don't you shingle yours? You could wear it beautifully. So little trouble. You'd feel for the first time like a woman without a care."

Then they spend two hours in a beauty shop, and when they get home, and look in their own mirrors, they don't like the effect, and spend another hour or so with wet heads, dampening all the professional wave out, and putting in their own kind with a self-willed curl.

OR it's a series of letters I get. Here is a sample:

"Mrs. Jones had her hair bobbed while I was on my vacation. She looks better than I have ever seen her, although I had kept her from having it done for a year. I am crazy to have mine done but John still objects. I think you are foolish not to let yours out. Hey, the south, I don't mind so much, but when I go into sections where the women are less conservative I feel that my antique hair sets me back among the has-beens."

EVERY morning when I dress for breakfast, I plan to have mine bobbed. Every night when I dress for dinner, I'm glad I didn't.

GLENNA COLLETT, who very fairly and sweetly admitted last week that a woman has to be satisfied with playing golf as well as a woman can, is human enough, now that Gertrude Ederle has beat the men's record in swimming the English channel, to rejoice that the men will have to try again in order to get this record back.

Women do not have to be satisfied with swimming as well as women can.

EVEN Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt is moved to express gratification over Miss Ederle's feat. And as usual when Mrs. Catt says anything, she has something to say.

"It is a far cry from swimming the channel to the days to which my memory goes back when it was thought that women could not throw a ball or even walk very far down the street without feeling faint."

"Yet I remember, too, one of the first speeches I ever heard made on a public platform was at a suffrage meeting in Boston, 40 years ago, and the speaker said that woman's freedom would go hand in hand with her bodily strength. The first necessity in the battle for equal rights, she said, was equal strength, and she

OIL CONSERVATION IN U. S. IS URGED

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, August 15.—That a serious oil shortage is in prospect within a comparatively few years unless conservation methods are employed will be asserted in the final report of President Coolidge's oil board to be presented to him within the next three or four weeks.

The final draft of the report has been prepared, it was learned today, and its transmittal to the president is awaiting its approval by all the members of the board.

Secretary of the Interior Work, chairman of the board, and Secretary of Commerce Hoover, another of the members of the board, are also awaiting the report. Both are now out of the city. A draft is in the hands of Secretary of War Davis and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur. The other two members, who are also awaiting the report, will go to President Coolidge without waiting for a meeting of the four members of the board, nearly all of whom will be out of the city for another month.

President Coolidge will be advised in the report, it is understood, that the oil methods are now employed by many oil producers and that measures must be taken to assist in a solution of the problems of the industry. No radical legislation, however, will be recommended, as it is the opinion of members of the board that drastic government regulation would not offer a proper solution.

PYTHIAN KNIGHTS VISIT MEMORIAL HOME OF ELKS

Chicago, August 15.—(AP)—The supreme lodge of the Knights of Pythias visited today in the busy program of the thirty-fourth biennial convention for services in memory of members of the fraternity departed since its last general session.

Passing from that hour, at which Rev. Frederick Z. Atwood, of Minneapolis, supreme prelate presided, the delegates made a pilgrimage to the new memorial headquarters of the Elks.

The memorial was of peculiar interest to the Pythians, as consideration of a similar edifice is a major question before the convention.

The proposal for such a headquarters is one of a number of resolutions which will go before the delegates for final action when executive sessions are resumed tomorrow.

SEARCH CONTINUES FOR TRAIN BANDITS

Rock Springs, Wyo., August 15.—(AP)—Sheriffs, ranchers, cow-punchers and government mail pilots joined hands today in an attempt to capture two bandits who early Saturday looked more than a score of miles from a Union Pacific train between here and Rawlins. Poses from five counties were coming an area of more than 250 square miles in southwestern Wyoming. The air mail pilots were instructed to watch for signs of the men and post office authorities considered requesting the Shoshone Indian reservation at Fort Washack to send the Shoshone braves into the desert to join in the search.

The five sheriffs' posse that are quartering the trackless hills of the Red desert and the lone peaks of the Wind river range consist for the most part of Wyoming cow-boys clad in leather chaps with their revolvers slung in heavy cartridge belts. They are possees such as Owen Wister might have described in his stories of the west, and are hunting their quarry in two famous "hide-outs" of the western "bad men" of other days. The Red desert and the Wind river country are almost inaccessible and only a few herders make their homes there.

Post office authorities have not yet determined the loss in the robbery.

STINSON OPTIMISTIC ON FUTURE OF RACE

After attending sessions of state Sunday school conventions and the Allen Christian Endeavor league at Thomasville A. M. E. church last week, Rev. Richard D. Stinson, of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial Institute, Sunday declared progress was reported by all departments the year just closed.

"I saw people from America, Albany, Quilman, Pelham, Fitzgerald, Moultrie, Columbus, Savannah and other points," he continued. "Farming conditions, ravages of the boll weevil and other disturbances along the line, did not seem to mar things as heretofore. This will mean a great deal in years to come for both race and school, otherwise."

"Our people in that section own their homes, small farms, and especially in Thomasville, race conditions are quite satisfactory. Every body seems to be busy working with their hands and striving to do the best thing for the community's good."

The convention was appreciated by the best people of both races. I heard the accredited leaders of the negro race point out from a Bible point of view the way the present generation should go and what we should do to fit ourselves for a life of honesty and usefulness. I discovered that our race will yet learn that it takes a long time to lay the foundation of a race. Patience and hard work will be required to build up a journey and it will require the correct conception of life and teachings of Jesus Christ to enable us to endure to the end.

"I wondered when observing, if the great mass of us would not serve our generation more correctly, if we lived on farms or in small towns, where we could learn how to work with our hands, own a small home and get the correct idea of the right life. Living in congested cities tends to cause us to become reckless and at the mercy of an unsavory element."

"I am not unkindful of the efforts that are said to have caused our rush to the cities throughout the country and yet what I have stated is the truth. I ask myself and those whom I saw at the convention, if the boll weevil was gone, would the farming life be so much more attractive to people to the places where they once lived and cherished. This, in my mind, means everything to people who are in great need of the right point of view."

I am not unaware of the seeming progress a large number of the best element of our race is making in high cultivation and that, too, by the people adapted to this section who understand each other."

To Boost Georgia At Big Southern Show in Gotham

In efforts to further cooperate with various communities it serves in attracting new industries to Georgia, the Georgia Railway & Power company has offered to distribute at the Southern exposition, to be held at New York in October, literature descriptive of the advantages of each of the municipalities.

In addition to this the company has planned to have a large exhibit, setting forth the general advantages of the state, both from agricultural and industrial standpoints. Similar offers to distribute literature have been made by the Georgia Railway & Electric company, the Macon Railway & Light company, the Georgia Southern Power company and the Georgia Utilities company, all of them part of the Southeastern Power & Light company group in Georgia.

Letter to Mayors.

The following letter has been sent by the Georgia Railway & Power company to the mayors of every community the company serves:

"We are just completing plans to advertise the resources of Georgia in an exhibit at the Southern exposition to be held in New York October 2 to 10, inclusive. In addition to a general exhibit, showing the agricultural and industrial resources of the state, we want to show the peculiar advantages of various individual communities served by our company.

"It is our desire to bring before the people of the east and north, and particularly the executives of industries which might be induced to move to Georgia, the fact that our state offers unsurpassed opportunities for the location of new industries. In keeping with our motto that we are 'A Citizen Wherever We Serve,' we want to extend to you an invitation to send us for distribution at the exposition any literature you may have on hand, or care to prepare, descriptive of the advantages of your community. Of course there would be no obligation on your part beyond sending us the literature. We hope that this will prove an opportunity for you to get before the people of the north and east the particular advantages offered by your section.

Aid in Preparation.

In the Days of Our Forefathers

When America was young, the wise pioneer women learned to gather, in woods and fields, the remedies the Indians used. From the rafters of colonial houses hung great bunches of dried roots and herbs. From these, in times of sickness, the busy mother brewed remedies for her family.

From roots and herbs, Lydia E. Pinkham, a descendant of these sturdy pioneers, made her Vegetable Compound. For more than half a century this dependable medicine has been taken by women with very satisfactory results.

If it has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?—(adv.)

Bowden, Fifth Ward Candidate, Anxious To Improve Schools

Declaring that he intended to do everything in his power to solve the school problems of his ward and that he had at all times been a persistent worker for the ward in this respect, J. E. Bowden, announced his platform Sunday as a candidate for city council from the fifth ward.

His statement follows:

"I take pleasure in announcing my candidacy for councilman from the fifth ward, where I have been a resident for 26 years. I refer every resident of my ward to my record as a private citizen. Although holding no political office, I have endeavored to serve the best interest of my ward and community.

"I fought hard for the magnificent building that now stands in the center of our ward, known as the English Avenue school. When the last bond issue was presented to the people in our Civic league I was the first citizen to speak before that body and request that we have a junior high school in our ward. I have been connected with the American Can company for 36 years and I take pride in referring my friends to my record there.

"There are other school conditions in our ward that need immediate attention and if I am elected councilman from the fifth ward, I intend to be as persistent that these schools be given attention. I have particular reference to the Laura Haygood school, State Street school, Meador-Goldsmith school and Davis Street school. All of these schools are in sore need of immediate attention and if it is within my power, whether I am elected councilman or not, I intend to work to that end.

"I believe that on the floor of council I can be of more help to the fifth ward than I can in the role of a private citizen, because I will have a more direct route through which to serve them.

"I take genuine pleasure to officially announce that on the night of August 17 at 7:30 o'clock my friends in the ward are giving a watermelon cutting in my honor, and I have the pleasure of inviting all citizens of the ward, their friends, all candidates and the general public. This watermelon cutting is free and will take place at the corner of Chestnut and Kennedy streets."

Spanish War Vets To Urge Soldiers Home Near City

Resolutions pledging the support of the national encampment of the United States War Veterans, in session at Des Moines, Iowa, in the movement to secure the passage of a bill pending in congress which calls for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the construction of a national soldiers' and sailors' home in or near Atlanta, will be introduced by southern delegates at the encampment, according to Sam C. Crane, secretary of the southern national soldiers and sailors' home committee.

The resolutions will be introduced by Sam W. Small, a member of The Constitution staff and also Washington, D. C., secretary of the home committee in representing the Fifth Georgia camp, No. 6, U. S. W. V. of Georgia, and Colonel William L. Grayson, commander of the department of Georgia, and Ralph Steele, junior vice-commander of the Roosevelt camp of this city. The delegates left Atlanta the latter part of the past week to attend the encampment which will be in session from August 15 through August 19, inclusive.

Similar resolutions were introduced and passed at the 1924 encampment which was held in Michigan City. The resolutions call for the support of the organization for the bill introduced in the house of representatives by Congressman William D. Uphaw of the fifth Georgia congressional district and the bill introduced in the senate by Senator William J. Harris, of Georgia.

Governor William M. Brandon, of Alabama, is also in attendance at the encampment and has expressed his hearty endorsement of the movement to secure the home in or near Atlanta. Mr. Crane said: "More than 35 civic and military organizations have also endorsed the movement as well as approximately 100 congressmen and senators. Mr. Crane added: The bill will be brought up at the next session of congress which convenes in December next.

"Every Atlantian should get behind the movement and wake up to the fact that other southern sections are preparing to make every effort possible to secure the home," Mr. Crane declared.

75,000 WELCOME AVIATOR COBBHAM INTO MELBOURNE

Melbourne, August 15.—(AP)—A crowd of 75,000 persons welcomed Alan J. Cobham, English aviator, who today completed the first half of his flight from England to Melbourne and return.

Police barriers were broken down by the enthusiastic throngs eager to catch a glimpse of the aviator. In the ensuing crush several minor casualties were reported and many women fainted. Cobham's plane was said to be in as good condition as when it left England on June 6, its engine not having required repairs during the flight.

The flight, however, had been marred by one tragedy. While flying over the Euphrates, Cobham's mechanic was fatally wounded by an Arab's bullet. A month later, with a new mechanic, Cobham continued his journey, touching at India and Port Darwin, Australia, and then flying to New South Wales before coming to Melbourne. In March, 1925, Cobham made a round trip flight to India from England. In November of the same year he left England by plane for Capetown, arriving in February 1926, and returning to London in his plane in March.

INSTALLMENT XIX.

Fairways Wins.

Fairways caught her to him till her breathing grew strangled, kissed her on hair, brow and mouth, tilted her chin up till she had perforce to gaze straight into his eyes, and:

"You've got to marry me," he said. "You've got to marry me!"

Richenda laughed. "After all, it is really just as well. I rather want to," she murmured shyly.

Then they heard Lucille's voice calling to them from the white tent in the moonlight beyond.

The wonderful moment was over.

"When shall we tell her?" whispered Richenda.

Fairways frowned. "Not yet," he said, "not yet. Leave that to me."

But, back in camp, she saw a queer gleam in Lucille Davenport's eyes. She had an idea that the fair-headed woman missed very little of what was going on about her.

Richenda, too, had sensed lately that Lucille had made frequent excuses to leave her alone with Fairways. There had been pleas of sick headaches, of fatigue. She was possessed of an odd idea that Lucille had been watching them. There were times when she found something leopardlike about Mrs. Davenport—something that crouched, waiting, watching for an opportunity to spring. As the days went on a strange dislike for this woman was growing in the girl. The fact that there was no apparent foundation for the feeling affected it not at all. She did her best to crush it down, but it grew and at times she feared that this distaste, strengthened in spite of all her efforts, must be apparent to Lucille. But Lucille was sweetly charming to Richenda.

That night in the dimly lit tent that the two women shared together

"Not yet," he said, "not yet. Leave that to me."

Mrs. Davenport paused suddenly from her vigorous hair brushing, and regarded Richenda with steady eyes.

"You are getting awfully pretty, Dickie," she said. "I have never seen such a sudden change in any one."

Richenda flushed in slight confusion.

"And—and—the soft voice was very measured, 'Brett, too, is beginning to look different—more serious—more—'"

She left the sentence unfinished, with calculated effect.

Richenda made no answer.

Then: "O, you silly, silly bilbies!" This was amused laughter.

"Do you think I haven't got eyes in my head?"

She said no more then, but changed the subject adroitly, much to Richenda's relief. But Richenda knew that her queer sixth sense was right.

Lucille had been watching for some time past—watching the love between them bud, blossom. Nothing had evaded her. All that there was to know she knew. Again there flashed across Richenda's vision that queer mental picture of a crouching leopardess . . . waiting.

The days in the little encampment passed pleasantly onward. The two women occasionally joined Fairways on his shorter hunting trips now. Richenda learned to shoot fairly straight, but she found it hard to overcome her dislike at seeing death in the wild. The time was curiously lacking in adventure. So far Fairways had not carried out his proposal to go out at night after lions. He realized that it would be impossible to leave his companions alone on the hillside through the dark hours. Often the three heard lions across the plains, but, up to the present, they had not been able to catch sight of any.

Sometimes they spent hours wandering through the luxuriant forest that lay round the foot of a nearby mountain. Richenda loved the forest. Here jade and purple berries lay among the strange scented flowers and little striped squirrels ran up and down the gnarled trunks of the twisted trees. Once she came suddenly to a jerking halt as a piece of black whipcord writhed suddenly across the grassy track a few inches from her feet. There was death, sudden and inexorable, hidden in the slim head of that flashing streak. Death, silent and hideous, in the heart of the voluptuous forest. But Richenda walked on unheeding. She felt that not even death could touch her now, leaving her destiny unfinished.

Fairways and she had very little time alone together. There was, too, something new about her lover which perplexed Richenda. His laugh came more rarely. His mouth was set in a stern mold. Often he went off for walks by himself. More than once she had come upon him with Lucille in muttered conclave together, and she had seen a strange, bitter smile steal around his mouth at times he deemed himself unobserved.

These things perplexed the girl, rendering her rather unhappy. Sometimes more than a day went by before she had a moment alone with him. Twice Lucille had gone off for a short walk with him. At these times she noticed that on his return Fairways was strangely silent.

Richenda chafed slightly. She wanted to understand things better. But, in those rare moments when she found herself alone with her lover, his kisses carried her along on a tide of such sheer happiness that her questions were never asked. Richenda was strangely unsuspicious. Nobody had ever deceived her. Brett loved her. That was enough for her. By and by when she had him to herself she would understand him better.

They had been a fortnight in the camp when Lucille congratulated her on the engagement.

But Richenda was determined to fall into no trap.

"Are you guessing?" she asked dryly.

"No," Brett told me. He says it's going to be very soon, too."

"Really?" Richenda felt a sudden anger. This woman seemed to have learned more than she herself knew.

But Lucille had a friendly arm linked in her own now.

"Don't be cross, Dickie. Brett and I are very old friends. Besides, you naughty thing, I think you might have played fair and told me yourself!"

If Richenda looked for a shade of jealousy in Lucille Davenport, in common honesty she had to admit that she found none. Indeed, Lucille laughingly vowed she would leave the lovers to themselves as much as possible. She removed herself to her sleeping tent on every possible occasion. She brought more than one dull flush to Fairways' face by her teasing innuendos—more than one angry frown, too. Indeed, times were when Richenda found it necessary to range herself on Lucille's side.

He caught her suddenly close to him then, there in the dark shade of a sheltering tree.

"Dick—you've got to marry me now—at once—next week," he said a little incoherently. "I want to be rid of that woman!"

The vehemence of his tone startled Richenda. She gazed up at him wide-eyed.

"But, Brett . . ." she began.

"I can't wait! I won't wait. I might lose you yet. As soon as possible. Do you hear? Do you? Tomorrow if it can be done!"

She opened her lips to demur, and he closed them again with a flood of fierce kisses. The strength of this man of hers hypnotized Richenda. She felt little, impotent, drowned in the great love that clouded round her.

"Girl, girl, you hear me . . ."

"Brett, Brett, darling . . ." She could not go on.

But both of them knew that Fairways had won.

Cracker Clan Drops Double-Header To Lookouts

Bert Niehoff Forced To Use Five Hurlers In Sunday Struggles

Lookouts Win First by 3-to-0 Count and Second Game, 7 to 4—Krehmeyer Leads 'Nooga Batters With Homer and Four Hits.

Chattanooga, Tenn., August 15.—(Special.)—The Lookouts administered two defeats to the Cracker team, Red Bates kalsomining Niehoff's men in the opener, 3 to 0, and Love proving an unfortunate pitcher in the second when the home team staged a bombardment in the sixth inning to win by 7 to 4.

The games were played following a downpour and started in a drizzling rain nearly two hours late. The sky finally cleared, but the going was heavy. The Cracker fielders in fine style behind their pitchers, making three double plays in the two games around the heyday and stagers many pretty plays, but their efforts at the bat were unproductive. Dutch Krehmeyer had a big afternoon against his old mate getting a home run and single in the first and three singles in a row in the second. Markle pitched good ball in the opener.

Rogers Gets Lead.
Tom Rogers was given a three-run lead in the second, but the home team gradually overcame it. When Tom passed the first man in the home sixth, putting the tying run on base, Niehoff jerked him and the home athletes proceeded to slam Love. Niehoff had a brisk argument with Mullen in the first game on an unusual play. With two on, one down, Rogers hit a high one back to Niehaus and Al muffed it on the dead run, with back to the plate. Niehoff claimed an infield fly. Bert cooled off, but McLaughlin got into the argument and was sent from the park.

The Cracker first and third occupied three times off Bates in the second, one down, Haas hit and Niehaus' blow sent him to third, but Hamilton made a sensational stop of Brock's smash and converted it into a double play via Krehmeyer. The ball seemed a sure hit. In the eighth, two out, a pass and wild throw by Hamilton put two on, but Rogers hit a high one back to Niehaus and Al muffed it on the dead run, with back to the plate. Niehoff claimed an infield fly. Bert cooled off, but McLaughlin got into the argument and was sent from the park.

Good opened the second game with a hit but Niehoff forced him. Murphy walked. Griffith's double to right center scored Niehoff. Jones bressed Griffith in the pinch, gave Haas an intentional pass and Niehaus popped out. The Cracker added one in the third. Griffith doubled to right, his second two-sacker and scored when Jones passed Griffith's bunt past third. Griffith took second on the play, third on Haas' bunt and home on Niehaus' fly. Rogers began to weaken in the fourth. One down Carroll got a bad-hop hit past first. Hartford beat one. Bigelow's blow to center scored Carroll. Don Anderson poked to Niehoff, who made a fast double play.

In the home fifth, Hips hit and Hamilton's tap to third sprung him. Krehmeyer singled to center. Jones forced Krehmeyer and then Hamilton scored on Lewis' hot hit which killed Niehoff. The sixth was a local procession. Hartford walked. Love went into pitch and Bigelow's double to the left wall scored Hartford. Don Anderson sacrificed Cy Anderson, who ran for Bigelow, to third and Hips sizzler past Niehaus scored Cy. Hamilton walked. Krehmeyer singled to center, his third hit, scoring Hips. Jones crashed to right, scoring Hips. Hamilton and sending Krehmeyer to third. Good cut Jones down when he tried to stretch his hit, but Lewis' double to left off Franchis' pitcher. The Cracker got one more in the seventh on Niehoff's single and Murphy's triple to right center, a tremendous blow.

Ruth Sets Pace In Homer Clouting

Chicago, August 15.—(P)—Four home run drives by Babe Ruth in the last seven days set the pace for his followers in both leagues. They brought his season string to 39 and indicates a spurt, which, if followed in succeeding weeks, will land the Bambino in record-breaking regions. Goode Goulin, with three homers, duplicated his performance of a week ago but failed to overtake Williams, of the Browns, who bagged two to gain a clean second place position.

In the National league Bottomley, of the Cardinals, and Wilson, of the Cubs, remained a standoff when each got one into the bleachers today to make the count 10-all for the season. The leaders:

HAWKEYE-ING SPORTS

BY DICK HAWKINS.

Time Leads.

Father Time has taken two of the greatest baseball players the world has ever seen by the hand and is slowly but surely leading them towards the bench.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the "Georgia Peach," who has established more records during his 21 years with the Detroit Tigers than has any other player in the history of the game, is one of these and Edward Trowbridge Collins of the Chicago White Sox, is the other.

It is hardly correct to say that these two veterans are being led to the bench. They are both voluntarily on the sidelines because they know that "time and tide wait for no man" in the realm of athletics.

A sportsman can scarce suppress a sigh when he realizes that the great Ty and the almost equally great Eddie are gradually but none the less surely surrendering their places in the limelight to youth.

But a glance at the records of these veterans brings the thought that they have done all and more than could be expected of two men and their voluntary withdrawal from regular activity is a mark of good management.

In 1905 when Tyrus Cobb went from Augusta, Ga., to the lineup of the Detroit Tigers, there began the greatest career in the history of the game. Cobb was not only the leading hitter of the nation for more years than any other man but his speed was unbelievable. He was the headiest base runner in the game and added to his extra-base record by stretching base hits into doubles.

And there lies the sad tale. Cobb is still a leading hitter, his batting eye has not failed but the great legs which carried him into hundreds of purloined bases during the past 21 years, are failing. Scores of spike wounds have made their marks and these, combined with the slowing influence of time, have rendered the once great legs powerless to duplicate their feats of long ago.

When Tyrus Cobb passes his fortieth birthday in December of this year he passes a milestone in his athletic career which can never be repeated but he has left a path of stepping stones to greatness which may never be trod by another. And it is not to be forgotten that Tyrus Cobb is still a manager and it is entirely possible that he may attain greater prominence in this branch when he does not have to worry about his own game.

Eddie Collins will not be 40 years of age until May of 1927, but he, like Cobb, has found that his legs are not responding to his call and injuries have taken their toll. Also like Cobb, Eddie is a manager and from the bench there is no reason to believe that his efficiency will not be augmented.

It will be interesting to watch the result of the efforts of these two great stars. It will be interesting to watch them shape the destinies of players with the aid of their vast experience.

Cracker Clan on Top Following Week's Play

Memphis, Tenn., August 15.—(AP)—Birmingham and Memphis are in a desperate battle between themselves for second place in the Southern association standing, but neither has been able to cut down the lead of the New Orleans Pelicans, and, furthermore, neither seems to know what can be done about it.

The Pelicans not only held their own during the past week, but they took a half-game of somebody else's. Last Monday they were six and a half games ahead of Memphis, who was in second place. Now the Pelicans have a seven-game lead on the Chicks and Barons, who are virtually tied for second place.

The Pelicans won five of seven during the week. Birmingham, by winning five out of eight, counting today's defeat, crept up again to an even footing with Memphis. Today's victory gave Nashville four games out of six and the Vols continue to hold fourth place by a good margin.

Crackers Gaining.
Atlanta gained percentage during the week, but continues to head the second division with Mobile, Chattanooga and Little Rock rounding out the standing.

Birmingham's heavy hitting was a feature. The Barons, in seven games, including Saturday's made 88 hits and 48 runs. Their 15 errors offset the hitting to some extent. With New Orleans continuing to play pennant winning ball, and with the Chicks crippled in the pitching department, the Memphis team is studying the schedule for the remainder of the season, and finds a little consolation therein.

TIGER FLOWERS OAKLAND CITY BATTLES GREB ON THURSDAY

New York, August 15.—With no fewer than ten, champions and ex-champions slated to swap punches in New York rings, the present week promises to be the busiest of the year in the boxing business.

Three European champions and three former world's champions will be seen in the same ring Wednesday night when Humbert J. Pugny puts on another of his charity bouts.

Paul Berlenbach, ex-light heavyweight champion, will make his first appearance since his defeat by Jack Delaney. His opponent will be Francis Charles, European title holder of the division, a rugged puncher who can take plenty of punishment and probably will have to.

Fred Bretonnel, lightweight champion of Europe, and Andre Routis, European featherweight king, meets Sammy Vogel and Eddie Anderson, respectively. On this same card an eight-round bout between Lou (Kid) Kaplan, ex-heavyweight champion, and Jimmy Goodrich, former lightweight title holder.

Tiger Battles Greb.
At Madison Square Garden on Thursday, the question of Harry Greb's ability to come back will be tested upon the gloved fists of "Tiger" Flowers, the first and only colored middleweight champion. The Georgia deacon licked Greb in this same ring last winter, since when the Pittsburgher has endeavored to put himself into shape to regain the crown.

Walk Miller, who manages the new, is in town with a loud protest because someone told him that Greb, the first and only colored middleweight champion, will be seen in the ring with Greb. Miller will demand that the state athletic commission "protect" Flowers.

Johnny Dundee, former featherweight and junior lightweight king, also is trying a come-back. He takes on tough little Phil McGraw in a 15-round bout at Coney Island Monday night.

The following night another ex-champ, Mike McCreary, will be seen in the ring with Greb. McCreary was a former champion of the world in the flyweight division.

3 SUSPENDED PLAYERS ASK LANDIS' HELP

Pittsburgh, August 15.—(P)—The next development in the Pittsburgh National league baseball controversy which resulted in the banishment of three veteran players, is expected to come from Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball.

Late last night, Max Carey, upon whom waivers were asked, and Charles (Babe) Adams and Carson Bigbee, pitcher and outfielder, respectively, who were unconditionally released, appealed to Landis "to come to Pittsburgh and give us a hearing immediately." The telegram also said "we have been unjustly treated and penalized without a hearing."

The three players were ousted last Friday, charged with having been the leaders in a movement to have Fred C. Clarke, assistant manager and vice president of the club, removed from the bench.

Appeal Sent to Chicago.
The appeal to Landis was sent to Chicago, but information here was that the commission departed for New York late Saturday. Whether the appeal had been relayed to him in New York was not known, and there was no indication of what disposition he might make of the case.

The action of the players in placing the matter before Landis came after hours of discussion, while the trio was closeted in a hotel. Then, after it had been announced the three would probably wait until Monday to make a statement giving their side of the affair, it became known that they had put the question up to the judge.

Efforts today to locate Carey, Adams and Bigbee proved futile.

N. Y. License Board To Act Upon Case Of Dempsey Today

Brower Places Facts Regarding Title Fight Before State Attorney in Effort To Untangle Situation.

New York, August 15.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey's application for a license to box Gene Tunney at the Yankee stadium September 16 again comes before the New York boxing authorities tomorrow.

Many regard the situation as having reached an impasse, with the license committee defiant in face of a declaration from the state athletic commission that the heavyweight champion is eligible in every way.

George E. Brower, lawyer member of the commission, already has placed all facts in the case before State Attorney General Ottinger, with a request for an opinion on the relation of the licensing board to the commission and this in itself promises some interesting developments.

Under the law, according to intimations from Mr. Ottinger, the state commission and license committee are separate and distinct bodies, each named by the governor and with full power over different but inter-related departments of boxing control.

The Walker law states plainly that the commission shall have full control of bouts and the commission full control of bouts who engage in bouts. Last week the commission voted Dempsey eligible but the license committee, comprising John J. Phelan and D. Walker Wears, refused to convene at the same time to expedite matters.

Among those to climb through the ropes today and face the champion were Ray Thompson, Jimmy D. Brown, Joe Karp, the "iron man" and Bob Delfino, the South American. For tomorrow Dempsey has called into the arena with him Big Bill Tate, among others.

Athletics Make Best Showing During Week

New York, August 15.—(AP)—Despite powerful assistance from the league-champion Washington Senators, Cleveland was unable to register an appreciable gain in its effort to overtake the flying Yankees during the past week.

The best the Indians could do was to win three out of five games while the Yankees won only two of eight. It was the Philadelphia Athletics, not yet conceding any pennants, that caused something more than a ripple on the American league surface by taking six contests and dropping only one, with only two errors showing in the seven games.

In the matter of hitting, the Athletics stood third, preceded by Washington and New York, but they made the blow count, tallying runs while holding their opponents to 15. The pitching and defensive play of the Macken was the best shown by any club in several weeks.

Browns Blow Up.
Washington's brilliant stand against the Yankees gave them five victories in eight starts and earned them 10 hits for 40 runs, leading the circuit in both departments of play. The St. Louis Browns made 11 errors, the worst defensive exhibition.

In the National, the race continued hot, with the champion Pirates winning two games against one loss. It all happened before they had even started. The Pirates, led by their captain, Adams, were tossed aside for meddling with the management and to one known that the future holds for the Pirates over under their new captain, Pie Travnicek.

Democrats Assail Claims Of 'Constructive Economy' Advanced by Republicans

Committee Points Out That Preliminary Budget Estimates of Lord Call for $55,000,000 Increase.

Washington, August 15.—(P)—“What price constructive economy?” the democratic national committee asked in a statement today, calling attention to the preliminary budget estimates submitted to President Coolidge last week by Director Lord calling for an increase of $55,000,000 in the cost of government next year over this.

“Appropriations by the last session of congress were $470,880,000 greater than the session just preceding, the statement said. “The enormous appropriations of last session are now to be overtaken by $55,000,000.”

“First the bait was ‘administrative economy.’ Appropriations kept on growing. The bait was changed to ‘constructive economy.’ ‘Constructive’ is a very wiggly word that takes many shapes and colors.”

Discussing the president's expressed wish that state and municipal expenses be cut, the statement declared that in the District of Columbia, “governed by appointees of the president, appropriations were $33,918,571 the recent session, an increase of more than $2,000,000 over the last preceding and now the budget estimates would push the amount up to about $39,000,000 and tax rate would go up too.”

U. S. GOVERNMENT IS PAYING ITS DEBTS.

Washington, August 15.—By careful management the government is getting out of debt at a faster rate than is required by law. The report

Judge J. P. Highsmith, candidate for the Court of Appeals, disposes of cases promptly. He is opposed to delay. He possesses ability as well as a name.

Jealousy Is Believed Cause Of Latest English Tragedy

ALPHONSE SMITH HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

London, August 15.—(P)—Jealousy is alleged to have been the cause of the quarrel between Alphonse Francis Austin Smith and John Thomas Derham Friday night at Whitstable, near Canterbury, which had as its sequel the death of Derham in a nursing home a few hours later and the arrest of Smith charged with murder.

Smith is the grandson of the late Hugh Ryan, who with Sir Frank Smith and Lord Strathcona was instrumental in building up the Canadian railway system. Derham was the grandson of Brigadier General Tyler, V. C., a noted general of the British army.

Derham was a well-to-do man, a member of the British army, and a member of the British navy. He was a member of the British navy and a member of the British army.

Howard Midnight Show Fills All Expectations

Well, the Howard theater opened its "Taka-Chance Week" bag of tricks

tonight, and the audience was just as good as the clock struck one minute after midnight—provided, of course, that you have a clock that strikes the minutes.

Before we get any further with a description of what issued from the bag of tricks, a word or so before perhaps be pertinent. Shortly before the performance began this morning, Gus Grist, who presides in the capacity of publicity director for the Howard, made it a special point to the stage offering this week is the biggest Public out that has come into this city since the titles of his attractions be not given away.

Fiance Finds Body of Nurse Who Drowned

Milledgeville, Ga., August 15.—(P)—The body of Miss Eunice Smith, 18, nurse at the Georgia state sanitarium, was recovered from the Oconee river at 5:30 o'clock this morning, 36 hours after she lost her life while wading in the stream.

Arthur Layfield, to whom Miss Smith was engaged to wed, recovered the body while diving in the stream a half mile below the point where she was drowned.

Layfield is a brother of William Layfield, 14, who rescued Miss Mary Youngblood, another nurse of the state sanitarium, who was wading in the stream with Miss Smith Friday evening, when both sank from sight. The younger Layfield, after rescuing Miss Youngblood, returned for Miss Smith, but she had disappeared and the body did not rise to the surface again until it was recovered this morning.

Miss Smith was a brunette, but when the body was recovered her hair had turned white.

The body was taken to the J. A. Moore undertaking parlors here and later was taken to Sunny Hill cemetery, near Sandersville, in Washington county, where the funeral service took place late this afternoon.

The Oconee river where the nurses and William Layfield went wading Friday evening is normally shallow, but there had been a sudden rise, due to rains up stream, and they got into water over their heads. Neither of the nurses could swim.

Miss Smith was from Bartow, Ga. Her father came here at once as soon as news of the drowning reached him and he kept a constant vigil along the river, with scores of other persons, during Friday night, Saturday and Sunday night.
